Update on Farmer's Market by Rev. Sara

The final Farmer's Market for 2020 was held at Stratfield Park on Oct. 3rd. Due to Covid-19 & orders from Gov. Lamont there were several restrictions all summer; no where to sit and stay/chat/eat, no activities for children other than arts & crafts they were given to take home, a reduced number of vendors, no live music until later in the summer, and while it ended with 250 shoppers on the last day, the crowds weren't as large as last summer. Consequently, they are $1,000 in debt to pay back loan. (While it was hoped that money could be raised at a Winter Fair on Dec.5th, it had to subsequently be cancelled due to escalating Covid-19 cases.) Overall, under the trying circumstances, the market was still considered a success.

Monthly Clean-Up

Margaret reported only Kay showed up. Make sure you come out for the last one of the year on Dec. 12th at 9 a.m.

Sign

Judy did a mock up of the sign for everyone to view. Susan motioned to accept the design, Diego seconded. The approval meeting by the Parks department has yet to happen.

Historical Commission Update

Marcus Brown has reported that he submitted an Ordinance Amendment to the city legal department to merge the two Historic Commissions that was approved. There is still no plan in place for new commissioners and Susan will have to resign and then reapply to be on the commission as her term is up.
